RE~ APPORTION~ MENT

It's a Game Lawmakers Play

Anyone who has ever toyed with building blocks will understand reapportionment — the super serious game Florida's lawmakers are currently playing. They're literally taking the state apart and putting it back together again to equalize the House, Senate and Congressional Districts.

Who's What In Florida

Special Edition is Early Due to Reapportionment

In this issue we are presenting a comprehensive 1982 directory of state, county and federal government officials. We are also including listings of state, county, city and federal law enforcement officials.

Normally, we publish this directory in April to coincide with the opening of the Florida Legislature's annual session, but the Legislature is meeting almost three months earlier than usual this year, and we have advanced our publication date accordingly.

The lawmakers had to get an early start in order to deal with the complexities of reapportioning Florida's House, Senate and Congressional Districts. Their goal is to achieve "one person, one vote" equality in all districts.

The Florida Constitution requires the state to be reapportioned every 10 years into not less than 30 or more than 40 state senatorial districts; and into not less than 80 or more than 120 state representative districts.

Standards for congressional districting are set by the U. S. Constitution. It requires that states make an honest and good faith effort to construct districts that are "as nearly of equal population as is practicable." Because of Florida's growth, four new congressional districts will be added, bringing the total to 19.

Florida was reapportioned in 1972, but uneven population growth has eroded the voting equality that was achieved then.

The Legislature gets first crack at reapportioning the state, but if it fails to draw up a suitable plan, the Florida Supreme Court will take over.

The primary objective is to achieve reapportionment before candidates begin qualifying for legislative seats on July 6, 1982. The first primary election is statutorily set for September 7, 1982; and the general election for November 2, 1982.

GOVERNOR

GOVERNOR BOB GRAHAM

Bob Graham, the 38th Governor of the State of Florida, was born in Coral Gables on November 9, 1936, and was educated in Dade County public schools, where he was elected President of the student body of Miami Senior High School. He received his B.A. degree from the University of Florida in 1959 and his law degree from Harvard Law School in 1962. As an undergraduate, he was Phi Beta Kappa, Chancellor of the Honor Court, President of Sigma Nu, President of Phi Eta Sigma, and a member of Florida Blue Key.

Graham's father was Ernest R. "Cap" Graham, a South Dakota mining engineer, who went to Dade County in the early 1920's and founded a dairy. He was also a land developer and state senator. His mother, Hilda Simmons Graham, was a schoolteacher in DeFuniak Springs. She was the daughter of a doctor in Walton County, which is near the Alabama state line in Florida's panhandle.

The basis of Graham's campaign for Governor was "100 Workdays," in which the candidate spent a full day of labor at a wide variety of jobs. He was inaugurated Governor on January 2, 1979.

During his first legislative session as Governor in 1979, Graham's energies were focused on the preparation and passage of the state's first biennial budget in 10 years, as well as on the passage of law enforcement measures aimed at the illegal drug trade in South Florida. Stressing austerity, Graham also froze property tax increases for the first two years of his administration, thus keeping one of his highest priority campaign promises.

In the 1980 session of the legislature, he stressed innovation in the state's taxing and spending laws, incentives for energy conservation, and more funding for education, law enforcement, and resource management. He also supported measures which would require more adequate utilization of state capital equipment, such as the use of school buses for general public transportation, and abandoned school buildings for state agency offices. In the face of a national economic downturn, he proposed spending measures, such as school maintenance and public building construction projects.

In the fall of 1980 Governor Graham campaigned actively for the passage of five constitutional amendments which were accepted by the voters of Florida on October 7, 1980. The first amendment provided for a property tax exemption for solar and other renewable energy equipment installed in homes or businesses. The second provided authority for the creation of a Housing Finance Agency in order to make available mortgage money for homes and rental units. The third granted authority to local government to grant property tax incentives to new or expanding businesses or for community redevelopment, if such authority were ratified by the local electorate. The fourth granted an increase in the homestead exemption from $5,000 to $15,000 in 1980; to $20,000 in 1981; and to $25,000 thereafter. The fifth amendment allowed the abolition of the state inventory tax.

Governor Graham currently serves as Chairman of three prestigious national education organizations for 1980-81: The Education Commission of the States, the Southern Regional Education Board, and the Intergovernmental Advisory Council to the Department of Education. On July 6, 1980, he addressed the National Convention of the National Education Association in Los Angeles.

Governor Graham inherited a legacy of public service from his father, "Cap" Graham, who was a Democratic candidate for Governor in 1944, and finished third. The older Graham served as a State Senator (Sessions of 1937-1943), and as a member of the State Road Board (1933-1935). His outstanding achievement in the State Senate was passage of a bill to eliminate the poll tax.

During the 1981 legislative session the Governor gave strong support to a law enforcement package that increased staffing of the criminal justice system (from Highway Patrolmen to prosecutors to prison guards); expanded prison capacity; and enhanced prison industries.

Graham faced a number of crises during the first three years of his administration, including a massive influx of Cuban and Haitian refugees and disastrous Miami riots. He has been praised for his leadership in these emergencies.

A Governor's Office spokesman said Graham is building for Florida an economic base unrivaled in any state. He said over 80,000 new manufacturing jobs have come to Florida through the efforts of the Graham administration — almost twice as many as in the entire decade before Graham took office.

"In the past year," the spokesman added, "Florida attracted 62 new industries with over $1 billion in new investment, which helps to explain why an amazing 25 percent of all new jobs in the United States last year were created in Florida. At the same time, Florida maintained not only one of the lowest over-all tax rates in the country, but also one of the very lowest rates of increase in rates."

Praised as a strong supporter of education, the Governor has been credited with increasing the funding for improvements in the state university system by 300 percent; with increasing state support for elementary and high schools each year of his current term; and with launching a new initiative to improve teacher salaries which he claims will eventually place Florida among the top 12 states. He takes credit for a successful push to also raise the state's share of education financing.

The Governor wants to be remembered as a protector of Florida's natural resources. To bolster this image he has taken credit for strengthening the role of regional planning councils and water management districts, placing more environmentalists on these boards, and leading the state's adoption of a "bold new water policy."

He considers enactment of "Save Our Rivers" legislation he backed in 1981 as one of his ultimate accomplishments. He called this "the most significant environmental legislation in a decade." He said it will enable the state to purchase thousands of acres of wetlands and water-recharge areas to protect Florida's rivers and to keep its water supply pure."

When he was campaigning for Governor in 1978, Graham promised to hold state government employment at or below one percent of the state's population; and to increase community care for the elderly. He declared recently that he has kept these promises.

Widely recognized for his leadership ability, Governor Graham has served as Chairman of numerous national and international organizations. These include The Education Commission of the States, Caribbean/Central American Action; The Education Committee of the National Governor's Association; The Southern Regional Education Board, and The Intergovernmental Advisory Council on Education.

First elected to public office as a member of the Florida House of Representatives in 1966, Graham became a State Senator in 1970. He received numerous awards during his four terms in the upper chamber, including "Outstanding First-Term Member of the Senate," and, "Lawmaker-/Newsmaker of the Year."

Mrs. Graham is the former Adele Khoury of Miami Shores. The Grahams were wed in 1959 while he was a senior and she was a junior at the University of Florida. The Grahams have four daughters: Gwen, born January 31, 1963; Cissy, March 19, 1964; Suzanne, July 25, 1967; and Kendall, April 30, 1969.

Legal basis for the office of Governor: Article IV, Section 1, Constitution, and Chap. 14, Florida Statutes. Method of selection: Elected by the qualified voters. Qualifications: When elected, shall be an elector, not less than 30 years old, and a resident of the state for the preceding seven years. Term: Four years. Governor Graham's term ends January 4, 1983. May be elected to one successive term. Method of removal: Through conviction in the Senate on impeachment charges brought by the House of Representatives. Compensation: $60,498 a year, and perquisites, including the use of the Executive Mansion at Tallahassee.

Famous Florida Firsts

The first mechanical refrigerator patent, No. 8,080, was granted to Dr. John Gorrie, of Apalachicola, Florida, May 6, 1851. It was described as "an improvement in the process for the artificial production of ice," and its validity was demonstrated when Dr. Gorrie produced ice the size of bricks for a dinner held at the Mansion House, Apalachicola, on July 14, 1850. He also installed his system in the United States Marine Hospital, in Apalachicola, as a fore-runner of modern air conditioning.

The first official diesel engine speed record was made at Daytona Beach, Florida, March 20, 1930, by Clessie Lyle Cummins, of Columbus, Indiana. He drove a Packard roadster equipped with a four cylinder, marine-type diesel engine with a bore and stroke of 4½ by 6 inches. His average speed was 80.398 miles per hour.

The first island-based U. S. military prison was established at Fort Jefferson near the Florida Keys. The fort was built on an island in the Gulf of Mexico, 60 miles from Key West and garrisoned in 1861.

About the Legislative Branch

The Legislature is the law-making branch of Florida's government. It is composed of the Senate and House of Representatives and it meets annually in the Capitol, in Tallahassee, for 60 days. In addition to these regular sessions, the Legislature can also be called into extraordinary or special sessions.

Senators serve four-year terms which are staggered so that half of the members are elected every two years. Representatives serve two-year terms.

A man or woman running as a candidate for election to the Legislature need not possess any legal qualifications beyond those required of any voter — except that the candidate must be at least 21 years of age and a resident of Florida at least two years prior to election.

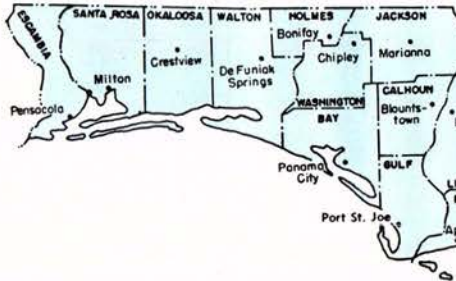

Responding to U. S. Supreme Court decisions requiring "one man, one vote," the Florida Legislature in 1972 adopted a population-based reapportionment plan that created 120 House seats and 40 Senate seats.

Using the 1970 decennial census (6,789,443) as a population count, the reapportionment was worked out by a computer so that, theoretically at least, each House member represented 56,591 people and each Senator represented 169,773. Florida's apportionment situation was described as the worst in the U. S. in 1961, but the 1972 shuffle was credited with creating one of the nation's best apportioned state legislatures.

A Postscript:

In case anyone suspects that some expensive photo studio produced our "Reapportionment" cover, here are the facts:

It was created "in-house" by the Sheriff's Star staff with a lavish expenditure of energy, some slapdash ingenuity, and hardly any expense. Involved in the team effort were Art Director Frank Jones, Promotions and Publications Director Al Hammock and Editor Carl Stauffer.

Secretary Carol Sherman had a hand in it too. That's her graceful extremity on the cover vis-a-vis the craggy paws of Hammock and Stauffer.

Using a borrowed tripod, a folding table and an inexpensive twin-lens reflex camera, the cover creators set up a makeshift studio in the editor's office. Jones provided a light meter. Hammock, whose youngsters are getting old enough to date and drive, managed to resurrect some children's building blocks from his basement, root cellar or some such netherworld. Stauffer gave advice.

No studio lights were available, but the do-it-yourselfers improvised with desk lamps and a couple of cheap spotlights.

A filter was borrowed from another camera, and when it turned out to be the wrong size, Jones had to hold it on the camera lens with one hand, while focusing and tripping the shutter release with the other.

In spite of these crudities, a photo emerged that the Editor just didn't have the heart to reject.

Seals Are Reminders of Boys Ranch Success

On October 3, 1981, the Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch, near Live Oak, began its 25th year. Recalling its humble beginning in 1957, it seems nothing less than a miracle this dream of the Florida Sheriffs could have even made it this far, let alone have become the dynamic and successful reality it is.

Hundreds of dependent, neglected, or homeless boys have benefited from residential care at the Boys Ranch, and countless others have been helped by its counseling and referral services throughout the state.

Along the way, the success of the Boys Ranch brought about the establishment of the Girls Villa near Bartow, the Youth Ranch near Clearwater, and the Florida Sheriffs Youth Fund which operates all three programs and continues to seek additional challenges for the future.

Yes, it's been a busy and fruitful quarter-century for the Boys Ranch, and this is a year to celebrate. One way the Youth Fund is commemorating the Boys Ranch 25th Anniversary year is by distributing seals of the same design as shown above. Sheets of these seals (24 per sheet) are available upon request to: SEALS, Boys Ranch, Florida, 32060. There is no charge for the seals, and they may be used on your correspondence year-around.

We spoke of a miracle, and that miracle has been the concern and generosity of thousands of people who have shared — first with the Boys Ranch and then with the Youth Fund — to make it all happen.

Now, we invite you to share in the celebration of this 25th anniversary year, through your use of the seals and through your continuing support of the Florida Sheriffs Youth Fund.
