President's Message:

Privatizing jails just won't work!

Sheriff Charles S. Dean

About 30 years ago Florida's Sheriffs took the profit motive out of law enforcement by abolishing an unprofessional system that paid them fees for making arrests, transporting prisoners, serving court papers and performing other routine duties.

It was a bad system, primarily because it placed emphasis on the quantity of arrests, rather than the quality. Consequently, since the fee was the same for all arrests, regardless of the seriousness of the crime or the time and effort involved, there was a strong incentive to go out and make a lot of easy arrests for minor crimes such as public drunkenness, disorderly conduct, lottery violations or bootlegging, while major crimes requiring long, unprofitable investigations, were likely to be placed on hold.

Any time the Sheriff's financial resources got low, or funds were needed for equipment, arrests for minor crimes increased substantially.

To replace this profit oriented fee system, Sheriffs sponsored a budget-salary system that has allowed them to make tremendous advances in professionalism and modernization. Today's high calibre of law enforcement is the result, but, unfortunately, the profit motive is threatening to rise again.

This time it is emerging as a strong effort to "privatize" jails — a trendy movement that allows private firms to operate county jails for profit. It may be just a fad, but it's a very bad fad. Sheriffs on the state and national level have opposed it from the beginning, but few county commissioners are encouraging it.

In Bay County, near the end of 1985, the commissioners ignored protests from Sheriff LaVelle Pitts and the public by signing a 20-year contract to let a private firm operate the county jail.

It is possible that commissioners in other counties may be sufficiently misled in spite of widespread concern about the consequences. Meanwhile, many questions are being raised.

What happens, for instance, if the private firm goes bankrupt, or creates dangerous and chaotic conditions in the jail? Will Sheriffs be willing to resume control when they are not required by law to operate the county jail?

What will county commissioners do when private firms find that the jail business is unprofitable, and decline to renew their contracts?

Overcrowding has caused a jail crisis all over the state. How will private firms cope with this problem when their profit incentive encourages them to keep jails full and hold prisoners as long as possible (just the reverse of what Sheriffs are presently doing)?

Are county commissioners ignoring legal opinions that say they can't contract away their liability, and therefore can't avoid lawsuits resulting from accidents, assaults, fires and other jail incidents merely by hiring private contractors?

Since private contractors have a profit incentive to keep inmates as long as possible, what will happen to the present system of "gain time" that reduces jail terms for good behavior, and thus helps to relieve overcrowding?

Does it make any sense for private contractors to duplicate the services presently provided for jails by Sheriffs' staff members outside the jail — services such as record keeping, purchasing and personnel?

Who will provide secure transportation when inmates from privately operated jails are taken to court appearances, work release jobs, doctors, dentists and hospitals?

Since private firms do not have to comply with the public records law, how will the news media and the public keep fully informed about jail incidents such as beatings, rapes, suicides, etc.?

Will private correctional officers be more likely to resort to brutality because they have the capability of covering up their actions?

This is only a sampling of the questions that are being asked about privatizing jails, and, unfortunately, by the time the answers become obvious, it is likely to be too late to avoid a chaotic mess.

Perhaps there may be some government functions that can be turned over to private firms with acceptable results, but I am not aware of any examples that are worth cheering about. It is possible that governments may save money initially by privatizing some of their functions, but I am persuaded they will lose money in the long run, and will also encounter grave problems.

This may have already happened in St. Paul, Minnesota, a city that has privatized several of its functions. Recently one of the top officials was quoted as saying, "We've had a lot of experience, and we can see that there are plenty of cases where it just won't work."

If this official is disillusioned, I am not at all surprised. I am thoroughly convinced that county jails provide one critical area where privatizing will absolutely not work. To experiment with it will be a costly and disastrous mistake.

EXECUTIVE BRANCH

GOVERNOR

GOVERNOR BOB GRAHAM (D)

Bob Graham, the 38th Governor of the State of Florida, was born in Coral Gables on November 9, 1936, and was educated in Dade County public schools, graduating from Miami Senior High School. He received his B.A. degree from the University of Florida in 1959 and his law degree from Harvard Law School in 1962.

In February 1959, Bob Graham married Adele Khoury of Miami Springs. They have four daughters.

As a legislator, Graham was an aggressive advocate of improved education for Florida's children. He authored and steered passage of a bill requiring testing for competency and progress in public schools, as well as numerous other laws aimed at improving the state's educational system. In addition, Graham authored or helped write many of the state's current environmental laws. As chairman of the Senate Health and Rehabilitative Services Committee, he also focused strong attention on the needs of the elderly and providing community health services.

Bob Graham was inaugurated to his first term as Governor in January, 1979. He was re-elected to the position in November of 1982.

As Governor, Graham has established a clear reputation as a crime fighter and strong supporter of law enforcement.

Graham has been vocal and active in his fight against drug trafficking in Florida. He supported and signed into law bills that mandate a minimum 15-year prison sentence for drug smugglers. He traveled to Colombia in an effort to find ways to cut off the drug trade at its source and he has repeatedly called for a greater federal role in fighting drug smuggling. Governor Graham is a supporter of capital punishment and has signed many death warrants since taking office.

Accomplishments of the Graham administration have been far-reaching in the areas of economic development, education, human services, law enforcement, growth management and the environment.

Governor Graham believes in a personal style of governing. He has carried over into his term as Governor the election campaign practice of doing different "workdays" throughout the state. These jobs include stints as policeman, railroad engineer, construction worker, sponge fisherman, factory worker, social worker, busboy, teacher and newsman.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

WAYNE MIXSON

Tallahassee's Capitol complex is familiar territory to Wayne Mixson, a Jackson County farmer who was elected Lieutenant Governor in 1978 and reelected in 1982.

Before he became Governor Bob Graham's running mate in the 1978 election campaign, he served 12 years in the Florida Legislature. For six of those years he was Chairman of the House Agriculture and General Legislation Committee. During his tenure in the House, he also served on the Appropriations and Rules committees. A variety of groups across the State have honored him for his service to Florida in the Legislature.

Outside the Legislature his public service has included appointments to the Governor's Council on Housing Goals, the Governor's Commission on Property Rights, and the Florida Migrant Labor Commission.

Lieutenant Governor Mixson holds the historical distinction of being the first person ever reelected to serve in that office. In addition, his duties in the Graham Administration include being Secretary of the Florida Department of Commerce and chief economic development spokesman for Florida. In this capacity he has participated in successful trips to Guatemala, Ecuador, Great Britain, Argentina, Korea, Japan, West Germany, the Republic of China, and sites throughout the United States. He is also liaison between local officials and citizens and their government in Tallahassee.

In his years as Lieutenant Governor, Mr. Mixson has won an international reputation as a leader in economic and business affairs. Among other honors he has been asked to join the Executive Committee of the National Conference of Lieutenant Governors as chairman of the Economic Development Committee.

The Lieutenant Governor was born in New Brockton, Alabama, on June 16, 1922, and became a resident of Florida in 1941. He received a Bachelor of Science degree in business administration from the University of Florida, where he was graduated with honors. He also attended Columbia University and the University of Pennsylvania.

He is married to the former Margie Grace, of Graceville, and operates a working farm between Marianna and Graceville.

Governors hold "Supreme Executive Power"

In strong language, Article IV, Section 1, of Florida's Constitution decrees that "the supreme executive power shall be vested in a governor."

Then it adds: He shall be commander-in-chief of all military forces of the state. . . He shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed, commission all officers of the state and counties, and transact all necessary business with the officers of government. He may require information in writing from all executive or administrative state, county or municipal officers upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices.

Other constitutional powers permit the Governor to: initiate judicial proceedings requiring public officials to do their duty, or refrain from unauthorized actions; request Supreme Court interpretations of his constitutional powers and duties; call out the militia to preserve the public peace; make appointments to fill vacancies in state and county offices.

STATE CABINET

The Executive Branch of state government administers and enforces laws. Top officials are the Governor, Lieutenant Governor and six cabinet officials — Treasurer, Commissioner of Agriculture, Attorney General, Comptroller, Secretary of State and Commissioner of Education. Each cabinet member is elected statewide and given specific duties.

Trivia unworthy of pursuit

"Calamity Jane" was the nickname of Martha Jane Canary Burke, a western sharpshooter, who was said to have been married 12 times, and has been described as the sweetheart of Wild Bill Hickok. She has been portrayed in the movies by Doris Day, Jean Arthur, Frances Farmer, Yvonne de Carlo, Evelyn Ankers, Abby Dalton and Jane Russell. Golfer Bobby Jones named his favorite putter Calamity Jane.

Famous epitaphs: Clark Gable: "Back to silents"; William Shakespeare: "Blessed be the man that spares these stones, and cursed be he that moves my bones"; George Bernard Shaw: "I knew if I stayed around long enough, something like this would happen."

Trivia unworthy of pursuit

These days it's no big deal to have a woman U.S. Senator, but it was in 1932 when Hattie Caraway (Ophelia Wyatt) became the first woman elected to the U.S. Senate. She was originally appointed to fill the Arkansas seat left vacant by the death of her husband, and was subsequently elected two times, in 1932 and 1938.

Very hi-tech: Device keeps car from starting, if driver's too drunk to drive

This has got to be the ultimate weapon in the war against drunken drivers:

A device called "Drunkguard" that will prevent a car from starting if the driver's level of intoxication is above the legal limit.

According to Law Enforcement News, (LEN), Drunkguard was invented by a Baltimore engineer named Joseph J. Owsik after his 19-year-old stepdaughter was struck and killed by a drunken driver.

LEN said the mechanism includes a hand-held breath tester, a computer that analyzes breath samples, and an auto ignition interlock system that prevents the car from starting if the driver fails the test.

There are also safeguards designed to prevent the driver from getting a sober friend to take the test. The car will not start with the doors open or with the window open on the driver's side. Pressure switches in the seats prevent a passenger from leaning over to take the breath test. An electric eye mounted in convertibles and T-tops prevents a companion from leaning into the car to take the test.

A sensor that measures the temperature of a breath sample prevents the driver from getting someone to blow up a balloon, then expelling the contents of the balloon into the tester.

An official of the National Highway Traffic Safety

Association was described as intrigued but skeptical. He said he felt Drunkguard would be "too easy to beat," but admitted he had only seen a rudimentary mode.

Prospective purchasers of Drunkguard would be convicted drunken drivers who were willing to pay around $500 to have the device installed in their cars as an alternative to going to jail.

Speaking of ways to "beat the system," has anyone suggested to Owsik that a driver could hold his small child on his lap, let the child blow into the tester, and start the car?

On the other hand, anyone smart enough to outwit the Drunkguard would surely be smart enough to avoid driving while intoxicated.

"Calamity Jane"

Women with ambitions to become law enforcement officers please note:

A rookie policewoman from Santa Monica, California, became known to her associates as "Calamity Jane" after she was shot at twice, stabbed, beaten, and pulled from two wrecked cars. All this happened in just 60 days of duty in the field.

Trivia unworthy of pursuit

Black aces and eights, the poker hand held by Wild Bill Hickok when he was shot and killed by Jack McCall, at Deadwood, Dakota Territory, in 1876, has since become known as the "dead man's hand."

Endurance was the name of Sir Ernest Shackleton's ship — the one on which he and his crew of 27 survived for over five months in the Antarctic. The ship eventually sank, but the men survived.

Women have been kidded a lot about the chaotic jumble inside their handbags, but this same disarray seems to have been actress Jean Harlow's passport to fame and fortune. Legend says she had paused in front of Kehoe's Drug Store, and was rummaging through her handbag for a dime with which to buy a soda, when a Hollywood director "discovered" her.

What a coincidence! The Chicago Fire Academy is located at 558 DeKoven Street, the former address of Mrs. Catherine O'Leary's barn. It was in this barn that a cow kicked over a kerosene lantern and started the Great Chicago Fire of 1871.

Why does Acme Packing Company deserve a niche in sports history? Because it was the firm that provided uniforms for the first Green Bay Packers football team.

President's pledge:

To meet the challenge with concern, constructiveness and cooperation

The following message to Florida's Sheriffs was composed by Citrus County Sheriff Charles S. Dean after he was installed as President of the Florida Sheriffs Association.

My fellow Sheriffs, as I begin my year as President of our Association, I view a number of complex issues as my challenge; and, in the tradition of the Virginia Minuteman's flag, I have adopted the motto: "Don't tread on me as a Florida Sheriff."

I reaffirm our concern to preserve the traditional role and responsibilities of the full service elected Sheriff in Florida. All of us have sworn to uphold our Constitution and those obligations that embody the role of Sheriff in the criminal justice system. With the honor of serving, we have accepted the liability and responsibility entrusted by our citizens.

One of our first priorities must be to change the underlying reasons that have resulted in the threat of county jail suits facing virtually every Sheriff. This can be done by giving the public a better understanding of the problem, by striving for an attitude adjustment within the judiciary, and by developing a cooperative working relationship with other county officials and commissioners.

I resent the correctional crisis role the federal courts and news media have dramatized, and I recognize that there are many components that contribute to our jail problems. However, one fact is clear: We are the guardians of our county jails, and we represent the most knowledgeable source from which the legislature and the executive branch should be seeking direction and information.

It is important to realize that some approaches to our problems may work in some counties, while other counties must seek different solutions. Some of us face fiscal restraints that perhaps others do not have. All variables must be considered if we are to exemplify the best in all of our efforts.

Let us attack our problems head on. Our challenge should be to develop correct alternatives. This may mean "sunsetting" bad laws, or decriminalizing minor offenses that clog our jails, or revisiting certain mandatory sentences, or correctly identifying the log jams that are causing our jails to become overcrowded.

Meanwhile, I accept the challenge to represent our membership with an attitude of concern, constructiveness and cooperation.

Victims locking themselves up helps to keep the crime rate down says victimized author

After University Professor James Q. Wilson co-authored a book titled Crime and Human Nature, an interviewer explored his opinions and experiences.

"Have you ever been a crime victim?" the interviewer inquired.

"Yes, several times," said Wilson. "I had a car stolen from an airport garage. I had a CB radio stolen from a car. I had a tape deck stolen from a car. I was chased and punched by a man on the streets of San Francisco when I made the mistake of thinking I could prevent him from beating up on a woman. I don't know what happened to the woman, but I know that he was a better fighter than I was."

"Did these experiences change your daily routine?" asked the interviewer.

"Yes," said Wilson. "I stopped driving my car to the airport garage. I stopped driving to a certain movie theater, and I stopped trying to keep a CB radio in the car.

"In short, I stopped doing certain things, just as many elderly people have stopped going out on the streets at night.

"One of the consequences of crime, I think, is that after it reaches a certain level, it turns the victims into prisoners by making them curtail their lives.

"One of the reasons that the crime rate has come down in several cities is not that there are fewer criminals abroad, but that there are more victims who have voluntarily locked themselves up so they can't be victimized."

Asked to comment on other reasons why the crime rate fell four percent last year, Wilson said: "One is victim self-protection. The second is that the baby

Honored for his service as Chairman of the Association's Board of Directors was Franklin County Sheriff Jack Taylor (left) who will remain on the Board under the Chairmanship of Leon County Sheriff Eddie Boone. The Past-Chairman's Award was presented to Taylor by Association President Fred Peel as one of his final acts before becoming the Immediate Past President.

Dean's the man: Sheriffs elect son of former President as their Association President for 1986

CRYSTAL RIVER — When Sheriffs attending the Annual Mid-Winter Conference of the Florida Sheriffs Association elected Citrus County Sheriff Charles S. Dean as their president they chose for the first time in the 76-year history of the Association, a man whose father had also served a term as president.

The new president's father was C.S. Dean, who served as Sheriff of Citrus County from 1929 to 1945 and was the Association's president in 1942.

The Conference was held at the Plantation Inn and Golf Resort, Crystal River, February 2-4, and concluded with an installation ceremony for the officers and directors.

Installed to serve with Dean were Highlands County Sheriff Joe Sheppard, Vice President; Indian River County Sheriff Tim Dobeck, Secretary; Madison County Sheriff Joe Peavy, Treasurer; Levy County Sheriff Pat Hartley, Sergeant-at-arms; and Calhoun County Sheriff W.G. "Buddy" Smith, Chaplain.

Sheriffs installed as members of the Board of Directors were: Eddie Boone, Leon County, Chairman; John P. McDaniel, Jackson County; Jack Taylor, Franklin County; L.J. "Lu" Hindery, Alachua (Vice Chairman); Buddy McCray, Lafayette; Roy Rodgers, Gilchrist; Gerry Coleman, Pinellas; Noel Griffin, Lake; Jake Miller, Brevard; Dole Bryan, Hardee; Jim Holt, Martin; and Aubrey Rogers, Collier.

The Association's 1985 President, Washington County Sheriff Fred Peel, remained within the Association's power structure by acquiring the rights and privileges of Immediate Past President.

In Conference business sessions, Sheriffs voted to take appropriate action challenging the legality of privately operated jails. They also agreed to oppose casino gambling in Florida, but took no position on a proposed state lottery.

Responding to an invitation from Broward County Sheriff Nick Navarro, they voted to hold the Associa-

Richard Ryals, President of the Florida Sheriffs Explorers Association and also National Chairman of Law Enforcement Explorers for the Boy Scouts of America, addressed a business session of the Conference. He is a member of the Explorer Post sponsored by Volusia County Sheriff Ed Duff.

State Senator Edgar M. Dunn, Jr., a candidate for Attorney General, addressed a banquet audience.

National Sheriffs Association President Dick Germond, a Michigan Sheriff, (left) discusses with Florida Sheriffs Association President Fred Peel some of the points he made in a Conference address. He reminded Sheriffs that they have "a perfect opportunity to help remold the future of the criminal justice system."

Four persons were appointed to the Governing Board of the Florida Sheriffs Youth Ranches, Inc. (FSYR). They are: Louis Williams, Lake City; Dr. Sherman Pace, Clearwater (a reappointment); Marion County Sheriff Don Moreland, Ocala (who was later named Chairman of the FSYR Board of Directors); and State Representative Beverly Burnsed (also a reappointment).

CRYSTAL RIVER — Sheriffs and guests attending the Annual Mid-Winter Conference of the Florida Sheriffs Association here February 2, 1986, were treated to a real old fashioned Florida Cookout featuring gator tail, frog legs, cooter (turtle), mullet, shrimp, oysters and hushpuppies.

This bountiful repast from the past was orchestrated by Sheriffs Charles S. Dean, James L. "Jamie" Adams, Jr., Tom Mylander and Pat Hartley — with many deputies and friends providing "back up" support.

The mullet frying crew was from the Hernando County Sheriff's Department. It included Cpl. Richard Clay, Danny Spencer, Sheriff Tom Mylander and Marc Rivenbark.

Who can doubt that Martin County Sheriff Jim Holt (left) and Florida Sheriffs Association Consultant Iven S. Lamb, Jr., enjoyed the "repast from the past"?

boom people are passing into their early middle years when they are less likely to be criminal, and the population being somewhat older is somewhat less likely to be victimized.

"And, there are 250,000 more people in prison today than ten years ago. If each one of those persons commits as few as ten crimes a year when free on the street, that's 2.5 million crimes that are not occurring.

"It's also conceivable, though I have no evidence of this, that our values are changing slightly — that people worry more about how young persons are raised. The slogan, 'do your own thing,' is less common today than it was 15 years ago."

The interviewer asked if it was true that almost half of all men will be arrested at some point in their lives.

"Something close to that," said Wilson. "We know that through the age of 18, if you take boys growing up in large cities, about one-third will be arrested for something more serious than a traffic offense; and, if you extrapolate that trend on through the ages of 40 or so, it gets very close to 50 percent."

Asked to explain why, Wilson said: "It's more than just our culture, because it seems to be true in most countries where we have data. It seems to be part of being a male in modern society that you're going to work off a little steam in ways that are going to attract the attention of the police.

"Fortunately, the vast majority of those who get arrested once never go on and get arrested two or three times. The problem we have arises from the five or six percent of those who, though arrested once, do not learn any lesson and go on to be arrested five or six times."

The interviewer wanted to know why crime "is so overwhelmingly male."

"It's a combination of the nature of males, and the way males are raised," said Wilson. "It's hard to disentangle the two, but we can say that crime is overwhelmingly male in every society for which we have any record, at any period of history.

"Males have a hormonal pattern which makes them, from very early in life, more active, more aggressive, more thrill-seeking, and, for the early years of their lives, more present-oriented, less interested in stable human relationships.

"Eventually they grow out of these things. They grow out faster if they are raised properly. They don't grow out at all if they are raised improperly. Males are different from females."

Reminded that women are "edging up" in the crime statistics, Wilson said: "Edging up is exactly the right way to put it, but the crime categories in which they have inched up tend to be relatively minor property crimes — pickpocketing, shoplifting, casual larceny, drug-related crimes. Women have not made big inroads into heavy street crime."

It's tough in Tennessee

If there are any Florida Sheriffs crying the blues about inadequate budgets, a look at the plight of Tennessee Sheriff Larry Simmons should make them feel better.

When Simmons' payroll funds ran out, six deputies and three dispatchers packed up and went home. The jail's cook and bookkeeper, Simmons' wife, Rita, continued working, but without pay. "I'm buying milk and loaves of bread out of our own pockets so the seven prisoners can eat," she said.

A couple of municipal police departments lent dispatchers to the Sheriff, and two deputies returned to work, putting in 14-hour days without pay, after a tavern owner was murdered.

Rare collection

It's rare to see a complete collection of uniform shoulder patches from every Sheriff's Department in Florida, but the folks at Architects Design Group of Florida, Inc., a Winter Park firm that frequently works with Sheriffs on jail plans, persevered with letters and phone calls until they managed to assemble one in 1985. To share their good fortune, they put the patches on a poster which was distributed to law enforcement officials around the state, and they gave the Sheriff's Association permission to print a small reproduction on the cover of The Sheriff's Star. Recently, they also agreed to let our readers order copies of the real thing, which is 34" x 24", and suitable for framing. An order form will be found on page 64.
