A Little Gem From Sheriff's Mailbag

TALLAHASSEE—This letter is from the files of Sheriff W. P. Joyce:
Sheriff W. P. Joyce
Leon County Courthouse
Tallahassee

Dear Sheriff Joyce:

I wish to thank you and the efficient men of your department for the excellent job that was done in checking our house for us during a two-week period while we were recently away on vacation. Our neighbors have reported how thoroughly your representative checked the house on each visit. From the signature on the daily checking card, this was apparently a Mr. E. Boone. Although I know there is no charge for this fine service of yours, I am enclosing my check in the amount of $10.00 as a small contribution to the Boys' Ranch in which I understand you are vitally interested. Again, thank you for the good service.

Sincerely yours,
Robert C. Bone

"Poached Crawfish" Sheriff's Headache

MIAMI—"Poached Crawfish" is a multi-million-dollar item on Dade County's crime menu and it's a big headache for Sheriff T. A. Buchanan.

The Sheriff estimates that the crawfish industry in this area is losing $5,000,000 each year from thieves who raid crawfish traps belonging to commercial fishermen.

There are organized groups of crawfish poachers, the Sheriff said, but the sports fisherman who decides to rob a few traps on the way home to supper also aggravates the problem.

The Sheriff announced a major drive to halt the operations of crawfish poachers. He's working closely with the State Board of Conservation and the Coast Guard.

First Negro Deputy

DADE CITY — Sheriff Leland Thompson has hired Pasco County's first Negro Deputy Sheriff. He is John Willie Stewart, 31, who recently completed a Florida Law Enforcement Academy course in basic law enforcement.

Florida's First Integrated Jail

MIAMI — Dade County has Florida's first fully integrated jail; and the historic task of desegregation was completed without incident and without the hiring of additional staff, according to Sheriff T. A. Buchanan.

Integration was ordered by the U.S. District Court on March 16, 1965, and the process began by mixing white and Negro women in the female cellblock on the second floor.

Racial barriers were dropped next in the holding cells and cells reserved for traffic violators on the first floor; and cells of trustees on the third floor.

The final phase was the integration of longer-term inmates on the fourth, fifth and sixth floors.

The inmate population usually runs above 700 and generally about 40 percent are Negroes.

The court mandate to desegregate the jail resulted from a suit filed in Federal Court here in February, 1964, by James Ferguson, a Negro who had been in jail. He claimed that segregation in the jail violated the 13th and 14th Amendments to the U.S. Constitution.

Better Service

DADE CITY — Sheriff Leland Thompson has hired additional radio dispatchers so he can keep his West Pasco County branch office open "around the clock." The branch office is located at New Port Richey.

Another Term

PENSACOLA — Former Escambia Sheriff Emmett E. Shelby has been given a new 4 year term as U. S. Marshal of the Northern District of Florida by President Johnson.

WHAT'S COOKIN'

GULF HAMMOCK — That's a moonshine still cooker Sheriff Pat Hartley is looking at in Earl Gillette's fireplace—and he also found a condenser in a closet and some fermenting mash (the raw material from which moonshine is made) hidden in the nearby woods. The Levy County Sheriff and the State Beverage Department raided Gillette's home after keeping it under surveillance for about a week and confiscated the evidence the Sheriff is checking in the lower picture. Five days later Gillette pleaded guilty before Judge George Patton and was sentenced to two years in State Prison. By his own admission he had a record of previous crimes.

U. S. Court Suit

CRESTVIEW — Sheriff Ray Wilson and Hugh Yarber of Fort Walton Beach filed a test suit in U.S. District Court seeking to require Southeastern Telephone Company to trace a series of obscene phone calls.

The calls were made to the Yarber family and a complaint was filed with the sheriff's office. The sheriff asked the telephone company to trace the calls, but it refused to do so.

Course Completed

SARASOTA—Deputies Leonard Balistreri and Charles Davis have completed a course at St. Petersburg Junior College in the use of the Identi-Kit.

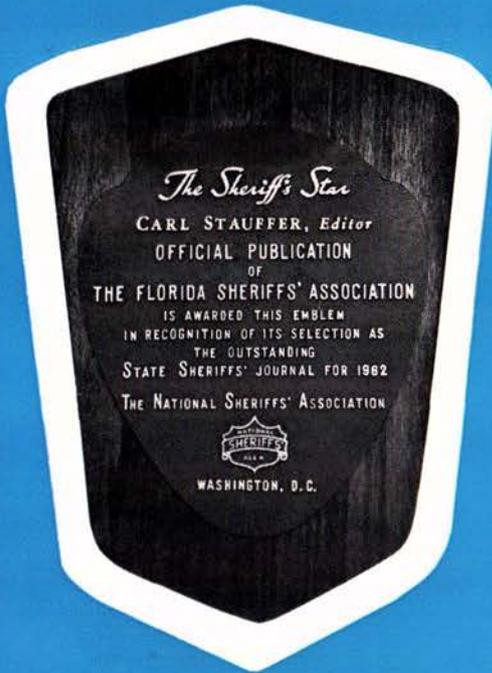

WEST PALM BEACH—MOBILE NOW—Sheriff Martin Kellenberger's School Patrol is mobile now. He is pictured above with Mrs. Peggy H. Shepherd in front of his new School Patrol car. Mrs. Shepherd is in charge of 24 school crossing guards and she will also put on safety programs for PTA and school groups and head the Ladies Auxiliary.

The Road That Friends Built

The main road into the Ranch — the one that leads through the main gate to the All-Faiths Chapel — was in bad shape. It had been patched so many times there were patches on top of patches; and no matter how many times it was repaired the pot holes kept coming back, bigger and meaner.

There was no money in the overburdened budget for road paving, so Ranch Administrator Harry Weaver picked up the phone and told Carl Stauffer, Field Secretary of the Florida Sheriffs Association, he needed 3,000 gallons of asphalt.

Stauffer called Jack Madigan, the Sheriff's Association's Attorney, to see if he knew anyone who could be "conned" into making a gift like this; and Madigan buttonholed one of his Tallahassee law partners, Julius Parker, who happened to have an interest in Seminole Asphalt & Refining Ltd., of St. Marks.

Parker, because of his long standing interest in the Boys Ranch, was an easy mark; and Weaver soon received word that the needed asphalt would be donated and delivered free of charge.

This, however, was only a partial answer to Weaver's problem. He also needed some crushed rock and someone to do the paving work.

Getting the rock was no sweat. "Down the road a piece" from the Boys Ranch was the Suwannee County mine of Florida Rock Products Co. This Jacksonville based firm had been kind to the Ranch in the past and, when contacted by Weaver, came through with its usual generosity.

For the paving Weaver chose White Construction Co., of Chiefland, as his "target" because this firm was doing work not far from the Ranch.

When he picked up the phone this time he asked Levy County Sheriff Pat Hartley to contact Luther White, owner of the construction firm and a Levy County resident.

Hartley called back later to report that White had agreed without hesitation to do the paving work gratis.

The pictures on our cover show the paving work in progress, with members of the Boys Ranch staff doing some of the preliminary patching.

Now the job is complete and our main thoroughfare is in better shape than it has ever been. We call it: "The Road That Friends Built."

No Dental Bills at Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch

The following article is reprinted from the Florida Times-Union, Jacksonville newspaper.

By CAREY CAMERON

LIVE OAK, Sept. 29 — For the past four years a shuttle from Live Oak to Jacksonville has made it possible for Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch residents to have quality dental care.

The care is made possible by the cooperation of Duval County Sheriff Dale Carson and the Jacksonville Dental Society.

Not only have some 75 to 100 Jacksonville dentists donated their services to the ranch but some have become so interested they have developed personal interests in their ranch resident patients, said Harry Weaver, ranch administrator.

Key personnel in the shuttle plan are Dr. P. J. Cakmis, Mrs. Laura Cannon, ranch administrative secretary; and Mrs. Francis Thornton, Sheriff Dale Carson's secretary.

"Four years ago we knew we did not have sufficient funds to provide quality dental care for the boys. We knew this would be an ever increasing problem and we also knew that even if we had the money, there were not enough dentists in nearby Live Oak to take care of the boys," Weaver explained.

Seeking a solution, ranch officials discussed the matter with interested parties on the State Board of Health and this led to a meeting with certain members of the Jacksonville Dental Society.

Dr. Cakmis, of Jacksonville, was appointed chairman of the Boys Ranch dental project. At first Dr. Cakmis worked in cooperation with Carson's office in the matter of appointments for the boys and transportation from the sheriff's office to the offices of dentists involved.

"In view of the fact that we had an increasing number of boys, we needed someone at the ranch to coordinate appointments directly with the dentists," Weaver said.

Mrs. Cannon was given the job of arranging appointments for the boys who now number 100. She works very closely with Dr. Cakmis and Mrs. Thornton on this.

The bulk of the dental work is done each June when boys get annual appointments but some are sent back for six month checkups and others have work that must be done on extra visits.

Friday at 9:30 a.m. is the key time for most appointments. The June appointments are made for each boy three months in advance. The boys leave en masse from the ranch by bus with about 30 to 35 a week going for their annual checkup. "If they need work, subsequent appointments are set up," Weaver pointed out.

The ranch bus arrives at the Duval County Patrol building about 8:30 a.m. on the appointment day. By prearrangement a detective or patrolman is assigned five or six boys to take to dentists and bring back. The officer is given a group of dentists whose offices are near each other. Often the first boy delivered is ready to be picked up by the time the last one is let out.

After the appointments, the boys are brought back to the jail for lunch. After lunch they return to the ranch.

"Not only are teeth filled but orthodontic work is done," Weaver said. "Without the help of the Jacksonville Dental Society we could not provide quality dental care. The cooperation and response have been tremendous. The dentists themselves have become so involved they want the same boy back each time. Some even send birthday cards and gifts to the boys. The personal involvement with a professional person means a lot to the boys."

He added that the response has been so good, the supply of dentists who want to participate has not been exhausted.

"About 75 to 100 dentists have taken part since the program started," Mrs. Cannon said.

She explained that some dentists involved over the years have retired, gone back to school for more training or moved from the city.

The boys needing orthodontic care go to the dentist at least once a month. There are about seven dentists providing this type of care to the ranch residents, Mrs. Cannon added.

Ranch officials try to ease the job of the dentists by getting the teeth of new residents in shape before they arrive at the ranch.

"When we get a new boy, his home county sheriff tries to get dental work done before he is admitted. We feel like this is consideration we owe the Jacksonville dentists so it won't throw so much work on them the first time they see the boy," she explained.

BARTOW — "A watch tells more than time," Sheriff Monroe Brannen commented after arresting five suspects and clearing up a robbery kidnapping case.

One of the suspects had a wrist watch which Joseph Ragan, the victim in the case, claimed had been stolen from him.

LIVE OAK — Suwannee County, home of the Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch, is also a pace setter in supporting the Ranch. Therefore one of the happier duties of Suwannee County Sheriff Duke McCallister is presenting Boys Ranch Builder Certificates to people who have made outstanding contributions in cash or special services. The recipients of the certificates in the pictures above are (left to right, top to bottom) Miss Elizabeth Ball, Director of the Suwannee River Regional Library; Live Oak Fire Chief Bill Roper, representing the Live Oak Firemen's Association; John F. Edmisten, Henry R. Edmisten and Marvin R. Edmisten, owners of Illene Industries; and W. C. Ragins, manager of the Live Oak Winn-Dixie Store.

Otto Honored

FT. LAUDERDALE—Deputy Sheriff Otto Hettesheimer, who has spearheaded fund raising activities for the Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch in Broward County for many years, received a "Citation for Meritorious Service" from Sterling McClellan American Legion Post.

The award cited him for his "loyal cooperation."

Mr. John E. Carroll, Kissimmee; in memory of Mrs. Earle Keene Ames.

Fund Growing

Donations from firemen to finance construction of a proposed Fire Station and Repair Shop at the Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch have reached a total of $11,385, according to the November issue of "Florida Fireman," magazine of the Florida State Firemen's Association.

Jacksonville firemen gave the fund a substantial boost by contributing $304 representing surplus funds from the 36th Annual Convention of the State Firemen's Association which was held there in May.

Nation-wide Publicity

The Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch received nation-wide publicity through an article by J. Francis Cooper in the November issue of "The Progressive Farmer," a national magazine.

The full-page article said the Ranch is fulfilling its objective by giving boys "security, love, discipline and all the essential ingredients of a wholesome, homelike environment — all the things every American boy deserves as his birthright."

A young boy rides a buckin' bronco at Wauchula. . . .

A man catches a fish in a lake near Sanford. . . .

. . . and they're all helping the Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch.

Throughout the year Sheriffs sponsor a wide variety of benefits for the Boys Ranch and they produce thousands of dollars to buy food, clothing and other urgently needed essentials for our growing family of 100 boys.

Fund raising is one of the unique features of the Boys Ranch — and an essential feature too because the Ranch is supported entirely by voluntary public contributions.

We employ no paid fund raisers. We pay no commissions to anyone for raising money. The Boys Ranch spends only a small portion of its budget for promotional materials — just enough to keep the Sheriffs supplied with the ammunition they need (pamphlets, movies, etc.) to tell the Boys Ranch story.

Each Sheriff is the non-paid fund raiser in his county and they carry out their responsibilities in a wide variety of ways.

The annual Junior Rodeo, at Wauchula, which this year was sponsored by Hardee County Sheriff Newton H. Murdock, produced $800 for the Ranch.

Two other well established fund raising projects — The annual Gainesville Quarterhorse Show and Johnny Leverock's Pinellas County Fish Fry — also poured thousands of dollars into the needy Boys Ranch coffers by virtue of the good work of Alachua County Sheriff Joe Crevasse and Pinellas County Sheriff Don Genung.

DeSoto County Sheriff Inez Holton (center) accepts proceeds from a barbecue and "Horse Follies" held by the DeSoto County Mounted Possette. Making the presentation are Adele Brown and Jerry Brannen. The check was sent to the Boys Ranch in memory of the late Sheriff Lloyd Holton.

Keep it Going and Growing

Sheriff Genung said some 6,500 people were served 3,200 pounds of mullet which he and other volunteers cleaned before hand to boost the profit margin as high as possible.

The grunts and groans of professional wrestlers in various parts of the state are also music to the ears of Boys Ranch Treasurer J. L. McMullen. Following an early precedent set by C. P. (Cowboy) Luttrall, Tampa wrestling impresario, promoters in both boxing and wrestling have made substantial contributions from benefit bouts.

One of the newest fund raising projects is an annual fishathon started this year by J. V. Warren, of Sanford, with the assistance of Seminole County Sheriff J. L. Hobby. Mr. Warren's private lake was stocked with tagged fish and fishermen paid $1.50 apiece to try to catch them. Prizes were awarded to those who caught tagged fish.

A "chicken fry" was part of Sheriff Ross E. Boyer's continuing campaign on behalf of the Boys Ranch in Sarasota County this year.

In Orange County, Sheriff Dave Starr's mounted posse continued its efforts to raise funds for the Ranch. Sheriff Starr also helped to sponsor the annual Jaycees' Benefit Baseball Game between a team of local all-stars and a Boys Ranch team.

In Marion County, baliwick of Sheriff Doug Willis, the Paradise Inn Restaurant gave 12 per cent of its "grand opening" profits to the Boys Ranch.

In DeSoto County, which has the distinction of Florida's only woman sheriff and also boasts a mounted posse of horsewomen, the "Possette" raised a substantial amount with its Barbecue and Horse Follies.

B. R. Quinn, Sheriff of Citrus County, sponsored a highly successful barbecue on November 6 in connection with the annual Citrus County canoe race and raised over $1,000. Unfortunately, the sheriff was unable to attend due to illness, but his chief deputy, R. G. Holden, carried on very well in his absence.

These are by no means all of the fund raising projects sponsored by Sheriffs, but they do illustrate the wide variety of ways Sheriffs use to keep the Boys Ranch going and growing.

Dues of Honorary Members of the Florida Sheriffs Association also help to support the Ranch and we have thousands of good friends who periodically send generous donations directly to the Ranch.

It was Good Advice — and Sheriff Richard Stickley Proved it

In January, Florida Supreme Court Justice Stephen C. O'Connell told Florida's Sheriffs how they should go about trying to get an adequate budget.

Seven months later Charlotte County Sheriff Richard Stickley proved it was good advice.

Speaking to a luncheon meeting at the Annual Mid-Winter Conference of the Florida Sheriffs Association, Justice O'Connell said Sheriffs should not rest their case with the Board of County Commissioners if the board "does not give you adequate funds to carry out the program which the conditions in your county require."

"I think you have a duty to yourselves and to the people you represent," he said, "to go to them in every way possible, present to them a forthright, realistic statement of the condition of crime in your county; tell them what is wrong with your organization; detail the needs in manpower, equipment and training; and measure the cost for them in dollars and possibly increased taxes.

"Tell the public what they can expect if they give you the funds requested and what to expect if they don't."

Proponents of better education have done this, Justice O'Connell pointed out, "and the public has responded to the move, even when new taxes were needed to answer the call."

Law enforcement is at least equal in importance to education, he added," and I believe that given the chance the people will treat it as well."

Stickley, a newly-elected Sheriff, was in the audience and he listened carefully.

Seven months later the Board of County Commissioners of Charlotte County rejected his proposed budget and he did just what Justice O'Connell had recommended — he took his case to the people.

In a short period of time the Sheriff appeared before 11 of Charlotte County's 17 civic associations to explain his budget. His theme was: "I know what you need for good law enforcement, now what can you pay for?"

He also pointed out that the amount he was requesting for deputies' salaries amounted to only 25 cents per person per year for each person in Charlotte County — "just the usual tip for a meal."

Seven of the civic associations unanimously endorsed the Sheriff's budget proposal, and citizens also appeared before the county commission to defend it.

This, plus the fact that the Sheriff announced his intention to take his case to the State Board of Budget Appeals if necessary, prompted the County Commission to reverse its previous action and approve the budget by a 3-1 vote.

"I sincerely appreciate what the commissioners did for me by listening to the people," said the Sheriff.

Later when he came back to the county commission with a request for an emergency appropriation of $6,000 as a supplement to the old budget he had inherited from his predecessor, it was approved unanimously.

Almost $3,000 of this was for one county jail prisoner's hospital bill and the balance was for urgently needed equipment.

BARTOW — There's no particular magic involved in the high volume of voluntary contributions Polk County Sheriff Monroe Brannen collects for the Florida Sheriff Boys Ranch. He simply takes every possible opportunity to put in a good word for the Ranch; and generous folks like the ones pictured on this page respond with substantial gifts. In each picture the Sheriff is presenting a Boys Ranch Builder Certificate to show his personal appreciation as well as the gratitude of his fellow Sheriffs.
